The Lord's Acre is a diverse and open community of volunteers who grow and give away organic food. Using the garden as a platform, The Lord's Acre is a visionary model of cooperation which educates and inspires people to address the many types of hunger through caring service and the growing and sharing of food.

This is accomplished by working with schools, colleges, churches, children's groups, similar gardens, and other organizations. The Lord's Acre actively assists the efforts of these groups to learn gardening and develop resilient communities of their own.
